NEW YORK, October 13 .- The New York Times and other morning papers today published news of which the following is the

John Hoey, who for the last forty years has been identified with the Adams Express Company, and who for over three years has been president, was yesterday discharged from his high office by the unanimous vote of the board of directors on a charge of malfeasance. Clapp Spooner, the vice president of the company, and a Bridgeport millionaire, who occupied the president's chair when the vote was cast to discharge Hoey, and who voted for that discharge, handed in his resignation, and it was accepted for precisely the same reason for which Hoey was discharged.
THE CHARGES AGAINST HOEY.

The charges against Hoey and Spooner, which brought about the above action, are, in brief, that they purchased the New York and Boston Dispatch Express Company and the Kinsley Express Company for $150,000, and turned them over to the Adams Express Company for $850,000, and that the difference between these two amounts was divided between Hoey, Spooner, Henry Sherburne and Henry C. Taft.

C. Taft.

The exposure was brought about by a suit brought by Sherburne against the other three men for an accounting and his share of the profits of the deal. Hoey's share of the profits is set down at $179,000, and Spooner's at $172,000, in the published statements.

Hoey had nothing to say. Henry Sanford, of Bridgeport, Conn., was this afternoon appointed president of the Adams Express Company. Frederick Lovejoy, of this city, was appointed vice president.

FLORENCE, Ala., October 13 .- [Special.] Considerable uneasiness exists in police circles over the continued absence of Sheriff Porter and Deputy Hines, of this county. Ten days ago they left for Tennessee, in search of the man Coley, wanted in this city for murder. The day after they left a telegram was received from Porter, at Hickman, Ky. Since then nothing has been heard from either of them. The day after the two left this city the murderer, Coley, was brought here by a Tennes-see officer. of Louisville, read the scriptures.

Rev. J. Travis, general missionary secretary of the Primitive Methodist church, of England read a paper on "The Place and Power of Lay Agency in the Church." Rev. M. D. C. Crawford, of the Methodist Episcopal church, of New York, was set down for an address on "The Deaconess Movement," but owing to his illness, Bishop William Hinde, of Kansas, treated the subject. Rev. Dr. W. S. He said it would have been far more fitting if his sister had been here to present her own cause. He hoped that at the next council woman would be permitted to the conference. [Applause.] After recess, Rev. Dr. Benjamin St. James Fry, of the Methodist Episcopal church of St. Louis, and editor of The Central Christian Advocate, read a paper upon the subject of woman's work in the church.

Rev. Dr. J. W. Lewis, of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, held that it was a bold, bad and dangerous fallacy to believe that because a large majority of the people were hammering and pushing after a thing it was a manifestation of the divine wish. "God created them, male and female," not "female and male." [Cries of oh, no.] Woman was first in transgression but also in the front of redemption. She was expected under divine providence to sustain the relation to the masculine church that she did to the family; not one of subordination, but of equality in cera

Rev. Dr. Buckley, of New York, said that many sensible women must have felt sick at heart to hear the platitudes delivered today. Norman should not give up the higher power for the lower. St. Paul had said they should not take the place of men. Women could not do the work of preachers without collision with the laws of nature. They must be mothers or they must be preachers, not both.

J. B. Slack, of London, held that women must discover their own work in the church, and that without help. They must not be fettered and traumeled in their work by rules cast by men. The London mission of Mrs. Hughes was conducted on that principle. Debate should be adjourned until women were free to speak here for themselves.

The doctor was somewhat nonplused, but continued with his remarks, holding that if God had intended men and women to do the same work He would have made them alike. He, too, called attention to St. Paul's words. Mr. Atkinson, M. P., taking the floor, animadverted upon the chairman of the morning session as unfair, but when the council disapproved this, he passed on to characterize Dr. Hoss's argument as logical jugglery, saying that if man and woman had been created alike there would be no men or women. Dr. Buckley had also gotten an "awful twist" on this question. [Laughter.] Why shouldn't such women as Baroness Burdett-Coutts have voted? Dr. Buckley could not answer that. such women as Baroness Burdett-Couts have voted? Dr. Buckley could not answer that.

Rev. Dr. Reid, of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, and of the Japanese mission, paid a high tribute to the work of the female missionaries that had come under his own observation. He asked for them ultimate privi-

LONDON. October 13.-Thomas Power O'Conner's life of Charles Stewart Parnell has ust appeared. It bears but few traces of a hurried preparation, yet it is a book of 223 pages, and contains a great deal in a small All previous biographies of Parnell accord to Avondale the honor of his place of birth. O'Connor says he heard Parnell state that this is incorrect. He was born at Brighton. Among his earlier influences were stories he heard in his childhood from an old servant of the family, narrating the horrible cruelties the Irish suffered during the rebellion. These made Parnell the man he became

From his mother also were derived traditions thoroughly hostile to the existing relations of England and Ireland. Though intensely Irish in sentiment, O'Connor always regarded Parnell in physique and character-in character above all-an American. While he was studying at Cambridge he was more devoted to athletic sports than he was to his studies, It is doubtful whether he ever read a poem or novel throughout his life, not even the poems of Thomas Moore. He first read Irish history while a prisoner at Kilmainham. In His Early Manhood. In his early manhood he was of unstained moral character. He became engaged to a young lady of Rhode Island, who jilted him for another. Referring to his first appearance in parliament, O'Connor says that the Irish members then led a life of isolated struggles. The awful loneliness of Parnell must always be borne in mind when one considers the terrible event that ultimately darkened and destroyed his life and brought his untimely end Isaac Butt then led the party. In the present moments, when the passionate friends of Parnell denounce his opponents as murderers, it is well to recall the fact that Parnell undoubtedly helped to break poor Isaac Butt's doubtedly helped to break poor Isaac Butt's heart and to hasten his end.

The O'Shea Incident. After a rapid resume of known points in his parliamentary career, the writer alludes to the charge leveled at Parnell that he misled intimate friends as to the truth in regard to his relations with Mrs. O'Shea. He says: "Parnell may have said that he came out of the trial with his character untarnished.

the trial with his character untarnished. Certainly he so wrote to one of his most affectionate and faithful friends.

"What he probably meant was indicated in a few words he spoke the day after his re-election by his party, in which, lifting, as he said, a corner of the curtain, he denied emphatically that he had betayed friendship, abused hospitality or broken a happy united home.

"Circumstances seemed to Parnell, as in the case of Lancelot, to make dishonor honorable and faisehood truth."

The Effect Discussed. The effect of Parnell's subsequent manifesto on the Irish delegates then in America is thus on the frish delegates then in America's thus described:

"Every member of the delegation except Timothy Harrington was indignant. Disbelief, disgust and despair succeeded each other. All rushed out to the first station where it was possible to send a cablegram, and announced to our colleagues in Ireland that henceforth was were to be counted amounts the engeneents. we were to be counted amongst the opponent we were to be counted amongst the opponents of Parnell's leadership.

"It has been represented that we acted on the cablegrams of others. This is false and unjust to Parnell. Our judgment was reached on Parnell's own words."

Proceeding to comment on the alteration of his appearance and character after the divorce disclosures, it is remarked that he had been described as having been murdered. The hand that struck him down was his own. Strangely enough, the idea that he would one day ruin himself, was familiar to his colleagues for many years. One instance of his aberration was his famous answer to the commission tion was his famous answer to the commission about deceiving the house.

about deceiving the house.

He had been then for a considerable time looked upon by his friends as so distrait that they instinctively anticipated that he would say something wrong in sheer absentmindedness. When he sat down he was quite surprised upon being told that he had committed a dreadful blunder.

A stranger visiting the house of common the same of common the same of common time.

A stranger visiting the house of commons would find it hard to understand why he produced such an effect there. He stumbled constantly. He had a very scant vocabulary and by no means a large stock of ideas. He was also very careless in preparing materials, which work he put off to the last moment.

which work he put on to the last moment.

It was quite common to find him plowing laboriously through figures, of which he had no mastery whatever, at times when he ought to have been at the house ready to speak. On such occasions his colleagues went through untold agonies.

At the last moment he would appear armed with bundles of papers, badly arranged and digested, but the house, sensitive as a barometer to his personal character, always felt the full force of this extrordinary man's strength. When he rose to address it, he special low tower often with inattention to spoke in low tones, often with inattention to the audience, which made the speech like a the audience, which made the speech like a soliloquy.

But on rare occasions there were outbursts of fierce, devastating passion raging within. Then his voice changed to a hoarse, sullen sound, and his mouth was almost cruel. His right arm was held forth in denunciation. I have seen the house quail before such an outburst of savage, though seemingly cold rage.

In most parliamentary gifts he was vastly inferior to some of his colleagues, but he was a consummate tactician. By instinct he seemed to know the right thing to do. I never re-to know the right thing to do. I never regarded him as a highly intellectual man. He was essentially narrow, and to this narrowness I attribute the final mistake of his life. when McCarthy, before the metair in the committee room, told him what Gladstone had said, his reply was to "pooh-pooh" the whole business as a mere non-conformist howl, which would die out if defied. One reason for his attitude was his latent dislike for Englishmer

He never got over this.

His strength was in his character, not in his intellect, and to bad ends and self-destruction were the same terrible strength of will and tenacity of purpose devoted, that were formerly given to noble and wise ends.

given to noble and wise ends.

Amongst his followers were many with stubborn will and flexible resolution, yet all were as clay in the potter's hands when he chose to exercise the power. His subjugation of his race from restless, torn factions into a great, united and absolutely obedient whole, was one of the most remarkable achievements in political leadership in the history of mankind. A Letter from Captain O'Shea.

London, October 13 .- A letter from Car tain O'Shea, written on the eve of Parnell's funeral, is published here. The writer says:

"There will be an immense demonstration tomorrow, which will probably intensify the bitterness of the factions. I anticipate a period of recrimination and personal rivalry, ending in a break-up of the cause. The time that this will take depends upon the subscriptions of the Clan-Na-Gael. If these are re-tions of the Clan-Na-Gael. If these are resumed, business will be carried on: otherwise the end is at hand.

"The Irish are always more interested in the man than the principle, except where the latter, as in the agrarian agitation, carries with it pecuniary advantage. The clergy will be unable to pay their candidates, and they have rendered independent candidates almost impossible. There is no chance at present for any one in Irish politics who is 'neither an Orangeman nor moonlighter. How I existed through my troubles I hardly understand. I succeeded probably because I fought alone, had neither help nor advice; therefore there were no divided councils."

CONSTANTINOPLE, October 13 .- The porte with a view of preventing bloody feuds and outbreaks of lawlessness, which have occurred lately, has ordered the governor of Tcutari to disarm the Albanians. The governor, who is an experienced general, and other military authorities, declare that the scheme is well nigh impossible; that it is certain to lead to serious disturbances. Many of the Albanians serious disturbances. Many of the Albanians are armed with Marlin and Henri rifles and to disarm the people would require at least thirty battalions of troops, a number impossible to be spared for that purpose at present. The at-tempt would probably end in a revolution.

Awaiting the Coming of Friendly Ladders by Which They Might Escape to the Ground.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., October 13.-[Special.] At 9 o'clock tonight flames were discovered in the rear stairway of The Daily American building, corner of Church and Cherry streets. THE WILL TO BE CONTESTED.

The Grounds for Contesting the Will of the Widow of President Polk.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., October 13.—[Special.] When the will of Mrs. Polk, widow of President James K. Polk, was admitted to probate recently it was found that Mrs. Polk had left the Polk place to Mrs. G. W. Fall, her niece, who has resided with Mrs. Polk, at the Polk place, for many years.

It was soon understood that the will would be contested, and the expected struggle to re-tain possession of the Polk place on the part of tain possession of the Polk place on the part of Mrs. Fall, and the determination on the part of the consanguinous heirs of President Polk, was begun today by the filing of a bill in the chancery courtat Nashville by the Polk heirs through their attorney.

The bill recites at length the provisions of President Polk's will and the will fleft by his widow, Mrs. Sarah Polk, and gives the names and locations of between forty and fifty heirs to the property.

TWO WOMEN

Succeed in Making Things Decidedly Lively About the Station House.

AN INJURED WIFE'S JUST WRATH.

Captain Couch Tries to Administer Justice a la Solomon and Has a Hard Time of It.

There was an interesting and lively scene in the office of the chief of police yesterday. It was closely followed by another in the main aisle of the city prison. Two women were the principal characters, and their respective avoirdupois bore a strong resemblance to a patent medicine cut of "before and after taking." Monday evening the wife of a well-known young man about town called at police headquarters and requested the officers to keep a lookout for her husband. She gave it as her opinion that he was devoting his time to the stertainment of a certain charming little woman who lives in the city. She said she

When asked his name it was discovered that he was the much-sought husband.

He was locked up, and yesterday morning asked that her liege lord be given a trial, and home. While arrangements were being made for the trial the wife, who is a nice and refined lady, was invited up to Chief Connolly's private office to await the result. There Was Another Visitor.

In a few moments after the wife went up stairs, a neat, trim little woman alighted from a hack and lightly tripped into the station house office and called Captain

"Is Mr. here?" asked the woman of Captain Couch, giving the name of the other woman's husband.
"He is," was the reply.
"Where is he "' she asked.
"Back there in the lockup."

"Can I see him?"

"Can I pay his fine?"
"After he has his trial, you can," laconically replied Captain Couch, and at the same time e sized up the woman. Captain Couch concluded to present the woman. "What kind of a looking woman is she?" "She is very large and fleshy, I think. I have only seen her a few times."

"Do you know Mrs.——?"

With a puzzled look on his face, Captain

Couch replied half way to the woman, kind of as if he was talking to himself, "that's devilish funny. There is a woman here that claims to be his wife, that is a pale, delicate little thing that don't look like she could face a stiff summer breeze."
"What! Where is she? Show me that

At the foot of the stairs the wife caught her, and it took all a couple of strong men could do to keep them apart. The wife delivered her estimation and opinion of the woman in terms stronger than eloquent. Finally Captain Couch said he was going to see "who was who," and straighten out the matter. He invited both wemen into the prison, where the man in the case was confined.

Not a word was said until they got opposite the cell where the man was confined, and still without a word they looked at each other and clinched. They were soon separated and the husband called upon to settle the matter. He took his wife's part and temporarily restored

The women retired, and nothing else startling occurred until the trial of the man yes-terday afternoon.

Notwithstanding the cold reception she got earlier in the day, the woman was present at the trial and still in the notion to pay the fine After the trial it required quite an effort to keep the wife from attacking the woman. But the wife paid her husband's fine and carried him home.

IN THE SENATE.

There Was a Brisk Session in the Senat Yesterday Morning

A deluge of reports, bills and resolution flooded the senate and work did not cease for an instant until half-past 1 o'clock.

There was nothing eventful up, nor were there any exciting measures brewing; it was only the routine work, which always besets the legislature near its close, and such was dispatched with a vengeance.

At the opening Senator Hodges moved for the reconsideration of the whisky dealers' tax. Mr. Terrell raised the point of order that it could not be reconsidered, which was sus

To Complete the Roster.

The senate took up the report of the committee on military affairs on the house bill to provide for completion of the roster of Georgia troops in the confederate army.

Senator Candler moved that the report be disagreed to. He said "the present roster is inaccurate, insufficient and a burning disgrace to Georgia. I have the honorable discharge of a soldier of four years' service in my pocket who is not found on the roll at all. There are others likewise, and I beg the senators not to aid such a disgraceful roster."

The report was agreed to, and the bill put for passage. It was still further discussed at this rount.

Mr. Cabaniss thought the compiliation of a

WILL PARNELL RUN?

Atlanta May Furnish Parliament a New Member.

J. H. PARNELL, OF ATLANTA, WANTED.

Sentiment in Ireland Among Charles Stewart's Followers Is Said to Be Favorable to John H.

Atlanta may furnish a member of par liament.

A cable message gives the inference that there is sentiment in Ireland favorable to Mr. John Howard Parnell succeeding to the seat of his distinguished brother, the late Charles Stewart Parnell.

Charles Stewart represented Cork through out almost all his parliamentary career. The vacancy caused by his death must soon be filled. A candidate will be put up by the conservatives. And the Mc-Carthyites will probably have one. The Parnellites, of course, will put up a candidate. It may be John Howard Parnell.

Mr. Parnell was seen late last night by a Constitution reporter and asked if he contemplated standing for his brother' "I have not given that a single thought, said he, and he added deliberately: "I de not know whether I shall or not." Continuing he said: "I have not heard anything direct from the other side, and have little or no information outside of what the newspapers give me." Being entirely ignorant of the feeling in Ireland, Mr. Parnell would not give any positive expression.

A friend of his says that if there was pronounced desire on the part of the Parnellites to have John Howard stand, he would be apt to consent. Mr. J. H. Parnell has never taken out citizenship papers in America, although he has lived here for twenty-four years.

He is still a British subject, and there would be nothing to prevent his standing for Cork or Wicklow, or any borough, if he chose to do so.

As he and the widow are the heirs t the tenant fund on deposit in France, it may be considered advisable by the Irish leaders of the different factions to have John Howard elected to parliament. That might clear the way to the distribution of the fund. .

Mr. Parnell knows nothing himself, as mentioned above, as to the state of public sentiment in Ireland in regard to himself. His purpose is not to speak hastily or presumptuously, or to take any step which would compromise himself or the followers of his late brother.

In 1872 John Howard did stand for the county of Wicklow, where the Parnell estate lies. He failed then by a small vote. His brother wanted him to return and run in later years, but he consented. He expects to never hear from his brother-in-law, Mr. McDermott, n the course of a few days. For the present he will remain in Atlanta. His aged mother is very comfortable in her New Jersey home, and is standing the shock of her son's death

Why the People Are Mad About Lack of Progress-Bridge Building.

The people of Jones avenue say that patience has worn to a frazzle on the bridge matter. They have waited a long time for developbut as none have appeared they propose to make some. Speaking of their grievances, Mr. J. A. Lyons, who keeps a grocery on Jones avenue aid vesterday said yesterday:

"The city of Atlanta gave permission to the Richmond and Danville railroad, acting in behalf of the other roads which enter the city at the Jones avenue bridge, to put up a new bridge there. The work was begun ab months ago. It has been carried on in a very desultory way ever since and there seems to have been little or no effort at all to relieve The work which has been accomplished

Every spike and bolt that he needs must be from Washington and then waited for till it arrives. This, of course, makes a pain-ful delay. In fact, one shipment of spikes is now on the road somewhere and have been lost for two weeks. With these prospects, no one can surmise when the work will be fin-

"You have no idea the meaning of this delay to the people of the fifth ward. The bridge is the only safe thoroughfare, ordinarily, for the vast numbers of school children that street school, as well as all the children and women who have to cross the railroad to get to church. The bridge is very dangerous for such to cross over, as a narrow seantling walk, which was lately improvised, is rickety and without any railing. The net work of car tracks beneath is a regular man-trap, so it is the bridge or nothing.

"Of course the Richmond and Danville railroad should put a sufficient force of work with all necessary materials nearer than Washington and the job should be completed in short order. To secure this, the citizens of the fifth ward have drawn up a petition which will be presented to the mayor and council next Monday. Every man and woman and child of that ward will gladly sign it and we hope the city will then take the work in hand and do it, or else make the railroad finish it without further delay."

THINK IT UNJUST.

Citizens Meet and Discuss What They Think an Unfair Assessment.

The residents of Whitehall street arose in protest a few days ago at what they regarded s unjust, and signed a freely circulated petition for a meeting.

Last evening they gathered at the home of Mr. O. A. Smith, near McDaniel street, and there ventilated their grievance.

Less than a week ago bills were received by the property owners for the recent belgian block laying from Cooper street out. It called for the full amount, $1.50 per yard, and there was an immediate dissatisfaction at this. When the macadam bed was laid eight years ago the property owners were called upon for ago the property owners were called upon for assessments of $1.30 per yard. They paid this

Until the recent double-tracking by the Consolidated company, the street was such as to cause no complaint at all. ### "REGULATORS"

Whose Grim and Ghastly Warnings Mean Sudden Death.

SCARING THEIR VICTIMS WITH COFFINS

Drawn in Pencil on Letters Advising Them to Move-The Matter Is Sifted in the Courts.

COLUMBUS, Ga., October 13.-[Special.]-The so-called "Regulators" of Muscogee are on the warpath again, if one may judge from the letters of warning received by a number of parties. It will be remembered that about wo weeksago a negro man and a couple of ous from up the river road, found a letter sealed and lying in the road, addressed to Buck Dublin, a negro who farms on Mr. George M. Clapp's plantation, four miles from Columbus. They, thinking it a love or business letter, carried it to George Dublin and told him to deliver it to his brother, which he did. When Buck opened the soiled envelope he was starled to find the picture of a coffin, very neatly drawn with a pencil, and beside it a sketch of himself. Above this picture, which was seen by an Enquirer-Sun reporter, was

this message:

REGULATORS. Then came the picture, followed by these

Buck Dubling and others—There is to be eckening in these neighborhoods soon. You will git your part. There was another sheet in the envelop which contained another plood and thunde picture. It represented Buck Dublin in his coffin, with blood oozing from his breast and from his head, and beneath it was written: Buck Dublin, you black scoundrel. Flx up your ousiness. Your time is about up.

That was all.

But that was enough to enrage Buck, and to scare him out of his senses. He at once began to investigate the matter, and to find the writer if possible. He and his brother learned that William Walker was atbrother learned that William Walker was attending the Hill mission church, near by, and they went and accused him of knowing something about the letter. He said he found the letter in the road, and thought he was doing Dublin a favor by sending it to him. The explanation was not satisfactory. Pistols and razors were drawn, fence rails and scantlings were raised and the fight begun. Walker received several blows, but made his escape by running into a house of a sister of his church, and got under the bed. He dared the brothers to enter and things looked squally.

o enter and things looked squally.

Walker came to town and swore out a load of warrants before Justice Bowles for Buck, George and Cornelius Dublin, and the three prisoners were carried before Justice Williams for trial Monday morning, charging Buck with assault, George with assault and battery, and Cornelius with assault. Buck was tried first. After the state had closed the de-fendant's counsel moved to dismiss the pris-oner, as the state had failed to prove venue The state's counsel asked as it was but a court of investigation, if it was in the court's discreslow venue if not proving it. The court held as the prisoner was on trial the state had the opportunity to prove the venue before closing its side of the case, that he would sustain the motion to dismiss the case This was done. The state claimed that the court had the jurisdiction to recall any witness at his discretion and obtain facts, overlooked, as the magistrate's duty was only to inquire and discover the truth and not notice technicalities, and sit as a court of record for disposal. The court held that the same rules as govern the superior court, apply to this court and he would discharge the prisoner.

Another warrant was asked for. It was refused on the ground that the prisoner had been tried and dismissed, the state failing to prove Walker then went before Justice Moon and obtained a warrant on the charge of assault with intent to murder.

The hearing by Justice Moon began late to the jurisdiction to try twice for the same charge, and plead former acquittal by Justice Williams. The point was sustained and the case was dismissed. The state's counsel stated that Judge Martin would issue the next Buck Dublin, in the first case, that of as sault, was bound over under a $40 bond to the superior court.

Messrs. Morgan McMichael, Samuel C.
Crane and John D. Little represented the state, and Messrs. Miller & Miller the defense.
The Dublins live on the plantation of Mr.
Clapp, and Walker on the place of Mr. Tom The Enquirer-Sun predicts that the fight is not over yet, and demands that the authors of the threatening letters be brought to justice. Work has already been begun on the case, and a good clue is in hand and some startling developments are looked for soon. Those who know the circumstances are confident that the work was not done by negroes.

A MURDEROUS ASSAULT

Made on the Night Watchman of the Americus Guano Works. AMERICUS, Ga., October 13.—[Special.]—A nurderous assault was made Sunday morning before day by a band of ruffians, upon Mr. W. J. He is wanted in this city by John M. Moore and Porter Bros. for larceny after trust. He was arrested in Anniston, Ala., yester day and the authorities notified, and De tective Looney went after him last night They will arrive here today at 2 o'clock over the Georgia Pacific road.

Vickery is originally from Birmingham, Ala., where he led a rather wild and checkered life as a boy.

About two years ago he came to Atlanta and secured employment in the shoe department of John Ryan's Sons. He held his place for several months. Finally his connection with that firm was severed.

Vickery then secured employment on the electric railway as conductor, but did not hold out there but a faw weeks.

out there but a few weeks. He then went to collecting for Thomas Ashworth, the attorney. He solicited bills for collection, and succeeded in getting all he could attend to. He was given a lot of bills for collection by John M. Moore and Porter Bros. It is alleged that he collected for these firms about six hundred dollars that he failed to reconnict account for.

He suddenly went out of business and shook the dust of Atlanta off his patent leather shoes, fatling to leave his forwarding address at his hotel or with the firms for whom he had been collecting.

He next turned up in Anniston, where he

He next turned up in Anniston, where he had secured the agency of a roofing company. He went to a first-class hotel to board, and hired a quarter of a column space in a newspaper, advertising his roofing, with his name in big wood type at the bottom.

This newspaper advertising was very effective, if it did not bring forth the desired returns. His place of abode was ascertained by the Atlanta firms who had some unsettled business with him, and they requested the authorities at Anniston to place him under arrest.

Vickery achieved some notoriety by stealing and rearrying a young lady in this city. The young lady lived in West End. Her parents were unchangeably opposed to her marriage with Vickery, but with his characteristic shrewdness he managed to steal and marry her in one of the hotels down town.

Her father was very angry and for a long time threatened personal vengeance on Vickery.

He is a nice-looking young fellow, about twenty-three years old, and a nice dresser.

HIS FINE REMITTED. E. N. Close Shows Himself to Be a Wrongly

Punished Man. E. N. Close has satisfactorily arranged a matter of disagreement between himself and the city. Two weeks ago a case was made against him for

Two weeks ago a case was made against him for selling liquor on Sunday. He was brought before Recorder Andy Calhoun and fined $100. He produced no evidence in his own behalf at the time, but afterwards sent his witnesses to the recorder, who then became satisfied of Close's innocence. Mayor Hemphill was accordingly petitioned to remit the fine and honorably discharge the case. This was done yesterday, and Close was correspondingly pleased.

Atlanta is fast becoming headquarters for mer-chaut tailors of the south. People used to, and they do now, to a certain extent, send to New York for their tailor-made clothes. But things have changed wonderfully in the last five years, and Atlanta merchant tailors have done a fine business. The fact is, the people have found out that they can get as good goods and as neat a fit right here in Atlanta as they can by going to New York. Furthermore, the charges are much less Atlanta, as has already been stated, can boast of a great many merchant tailoring firms, notably among them Mr. Harry B. While the product of his factory is as good as that of any other, he charges a small price, and you know that is to be considered these beopie with visit Ananta. Attanta has the finest entertainment to offer them that she has ever had.

The exposition will be the best the south has ever had. King Solomon will prove to be a great drawing card, but the great cyclorama—the "Battle of Missionary Ridge"—will attract equally as well. Being located in the heart of the city, and having already been seen by thousands of our people, it is reasonable to suppose that the cyclorama will attract equally as large a number of visitors as King Solomon.

At the New Orleans exposition the "Battle of Soudan" proved a greater attraction than the exposition, and as Missionary Ridge was made by the same artists, and is pronounced by all to be far superior to Soudan, it is reasonable to suppose that the great cyclorama will divide homors with the exposition.

THE MEMORIAL MEETING

To! Be Held by the Veterans Will Be an Interesting One. The veterans will hold interesting memorial ervices on next Sunday at the Central Presbyterian church. The programme has already been arranged by the executive committee. The original programme of exercises as prepared by the executive committee of the association and by the chaplain, Rev. T. P. Cleveland, provided for short addresses by Dr. Lee, Dr. Evans and Dr. Hawthorne.

The two former gentlemen have notified the veterans that they will be unable to serve, be cause of their absence from the city on next Sunday. Dr. Hawthorne will therefore be the only speaker, and he will deliver the same sermon which he preached to the veterans of Tennessee at Chattanooga on last Sunday. All of the friends of the deceased veterans are especially myited to be present. are especially invited to be present.

Bry Goods; Carpets, Furniture and Shoes.

We are still, as in the past, and will be in the future, leading the van. This has been our pleasant duty for over a quarter of a century. Principle as well as capital is invested in this business. Our aim from the start has been to make every transaction an open book. Our pride, to merit the confidence of every customer. Our motto the best is the cheapest. Thus for more than twenty-five years we have worked pleasantly and prosperously with clean hands and fresh goods. No shoddies, no seconds, no bankrupt stocks We have enlarged from time to time, now using over 40,000 square feet of floor space, two warehouses or storerooms entirely disconnected from main store. We have bought a large stock. We always buy a large stock. We bought them as usual to sell, and we are enjoying that American privilege immensely. Especially so when we hear customers say that when she was a girl she used to come with her mother to trade with us. Now her children come with her, and that they used to talk of our so-often repeated sentence in the ads-the Best is the Cheapest, and that she had found it so for twenty-five years. Just so. Here is our abiding faith. No secrecy is involved. It's all in buying. If you were to go into a factory you would notice all the wools running through machines dividing the short from the long. Now the colors may be exactly the same, but the short fibre is worth less money than the long, and few people would or could detect the difference in quality. The question, however, with the buyer is which is the more economy to buy. No sane person could afford to stop and count the few cents per yard, let it be in silk, broadcloth or carpets. The best is the cheapest. It is a plain business principle which has grown into the marrow and sinew of our business. All houses do not always keep the very best. Some never. And when you see a piece of goods advertised as the best at a catch price, then you can satisfy yourself as to quality if you know what it is. The trade who uses first-class goods pay very little attention to these things. When they want a dress or a carpet they want a good one and they know that it will cost more than a sorry one We buy larger probably than any other southern house in fine goods. We discount every bill with cash. By this simple rule we have an advantage over our competitors, and can undersell. In other words sell the same quantity for less and make as much as our competitors. We feel kindly to all who do an upright and legitimate business and want them to succeed. But we will continue, as in the past, to sell as low as any house in the United States. Can and give quality equal to the best from the looms. Our guarantee has been a recommendation for over twenty-five years with a record surpassing any southern house. We feel no inclination to change from the broad beaten paths so pleasant to buyer and seller, and will give the very best for the money.

Porter's Census Bureau.

The workings of the census bureau under Porter will undoubtedly make a savory subject for congressional investigation. It is understood that Porter wants to make the bureau permanent, but the probability is that he will forego that inclination in the light that a democratic congress may be able to shed on some of the dark transanctions that are said to have occurred already.

What is the matter with Porter anyway? What has he done with the money that was appropriated to carry on and complete the eleventh census? The census of 1880, which was on a far more elaborate and costly scale than that of 1890, cost in all a little more than four million dollars. In sixteen months Porter has exhausted the liberal appropriation of $6,400,000, and he admits that it will take four or five years to complete the work. According to this, the six and a half million of dollars that Porter has already spent is merely a beginning.

What Porter wants now is for the coming congress to appropriate two or three millions more, and with this he can complete about half the work. According to this estimate, when everything is wound up and all the hands paid off, so to speak, the census of 1890 will have cost the people about fifteen million dollars, as against $4,000,000 for the far more elaborate census of 1880. It will be observed from this this that the Blarsted Britisher is able to get in his work with a coolness and a cuteness calculated to put the traditional yankee to shame.

If the democratic house can be induced to further rob the people by making the appropriations which Porter is waiting to ask for, it may be taken for granted that the tax payers will pay $15,000,000 for a census that is already discredited because it is known to be utterly untrustworthy. It will be worth nothing after it is completed, but it will represent the costliest job that has lately been taken under the auspices of the corrupt republican party. The New York Herald brings out all this information, and its Washington correspondent adds a picture of darker hue to the financial mismanagement. He says:

Ever since the census bureau was started it has been the source of more scandals than all the other public offices in Washington together. It is notorious in this city that women of dissolut lives have found easy employment in Mr. Porter's department. It is hardly necessary to refer to the well-known case of "the Queen of the Census," who was retained there in spite of the protest 'c respectable women under her, until public sentiment compelled Porter to dismiss her. There are other cases just as bad. Within a few months three notorious characters of the street have been removed from the bureau because the honest women who worked with them were threatening a public exposure of the immorality that was them. The stories that are and vouched for in Washington about certain women that are employed in the bureau and the influences that led to their appointment are simply

Mr. Porter's bureau was exempt from the opera Intely no bar to the employment of immoral a Mr. Porter is said to have smiled sarcastically when the possibility of a congressional investiga-tion of his crazy-quilt concern was mentioned to

In this connection I recall a story that came on about a year ago, when a young woman employed in the census bureau committed suicide, and it was discovered from her letters and papers that was supported by the member of congres secured her appointment to the census bureau to eke out his own purse. It is possible that Mr. Porter was thinking, as he smiled, of some other stories like that.

Or it is possible that he was merely reflecting on the large number of democrats he has appointed to office since he discovered that the next house nid be democratic. When the democratic house meets for business it is probable that Porter's sarcastic smile will be swept away by the broom of investigation. The appointment of officeseeking democrats will not help him.

They Should Not be Neglected.

With wonderful unanimity the State papers are endorsing the two constitutional amendment bills introduced by Mr. Wheeler. of Walker, and passed by the house. Without exception they unite in expressing the hope that the senate will pass these two measures, looking to annual sessions and providing for a fifty-day limitation.

The Columbus Enquirer-Sun has the following editorial on the subject, which elaborates the sentiment already expressed by the Macon, Savannah, Augusta and Atlanta papers. In approving the bills, the Enquirer-Sun says:

Enquirer-Sun says:

The Enquirer-Sun is glad to give its hearty approval and endorsement of the bill which passed by the house on Thursday for an emendment to the constitution making the session of the legislature annual and limiting said session to sixty days. This bill was introduced by Mr. Wheeler, of Walker, who has been a member of the general assembly for several terms, and is therefore somewhat familiar with the amount of legitimate business which is likely to come before it and the requisite time to properly and intelligently disuisite time to properly and intelligently business which is likely to come before it and the requisite time to properly and intelligently dispose of it.

The intention of the present constitution was to limit the biennial session of the legislature to forty days, but this has been practically a dead letter, as not since the adoption of the constitution has this provision been regarded. The time is not sufficient to attend to the business, when the legislature meets once in two years, but, with annual sessions of fifty days each, there would be no difficulty whatever. It would be a great saring to the state, and there would be less likelihood of useless and injurious legislation being introduced or discussed. The general assembly would have to get down to business, and they would get through with it without any trouble.

The clause in the present constitution which permits of a recess opens the door to a session of indefinite length, and not a legislature that has met since the adoption of that instrument has adjourned inside of one hundred days. Hence annual sessions of fifty days each would really accomplish the intent of the framers of the constitution that is impossible under the section as it now stands.

We trust this bill will pass the senate and be avow stands.

We trust this bill will pass the senate and be approved by the governor, and that hereafter the proved by the governor, and that hereafter the state will not be burthened unnecessarily by the expense of these biennisl sessions, which are extended over the period of a third of a year. We have no doubt that such an amendment submitted to the people would be adopted by a very large majority. It is a move in the right direction. ajority. It is a move in the right direction.

These bills have been read only once in the senate, and will probably be read a second time today. As they seek to amend the titution, their passage will require a two-thirds vote of the full membership of the senate, and it is to be hoped that they will receive such a vote. The time is short but the bills can be reached if the senate wills.

They cannot become laws until they are submitted to, and approved by the people, and the senate should not hesitate to give them a chance to say whether or not they

The Farmers and the Republicans.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, which is republican organ, thinks that Governor Campbell makes "a serious tactical blunder" when he says that farming is yearly growing more unprofitable. In order to refute this statement the Globe-Democrat gets into the air, as the boys say, and we shall not attempt to follow it there, yet it ought to be an easy matter for the editor of a daily newspaper to remember that Governor Campbell's declaration is the substance of a confession made by John Sherman not many months ago in an interview which was widely published and commented on at

Sherman made no attempt to deny a fact which is palpable enough in Ohio; he merely confessed the fact and sought to explain it by remarking that he didn't know any remedy for it. What is the meaning of the decilne in the value of farm lands in Ohio? It must mean something; there must be some fact behind it to account for it; it is the result of some cause. If the profits of farming had increased in that state, as the Globe-Democrat wildly assumes, farm values would not have de-

The great trouble with the farmers is the fact that they bear the brunt of all bad legislation. The greater part of the burdens of unjust taxation fall on them. Whether so intended or not, they are the victims of nearly all the vicious laws for which republicanism is responsible. They find their property outlawed in the nation's banks and discredited in the loan markets, so that when they are compelled to borrow they are plucked by the shylocks who have money to lend. The Globe-Democrat need not doubt that the farmers understand the situation. They have at last discovered that the majority of the ills from which they suffer are the outcome of republican class legislation, and the nature and extent of the alliance movement shows that they propose to resent the injustice of which they are the victims.

The High Tariff Campaign.

The support of the McKinley tariff law by the republicans involves their editors and orators in an ever-thickening maze of stupid inconsistencies. A year ago, when the fall elections were pending, we were told that the intention of the McKinley law was to practically shut off the importation of foreign articles that could be manufactured here in order to widen and strengthen the home market. New manufactories were to spring up and old ones were to be enlarged, and in this way the field of employment was to be widened so as to utilize the idle labor of the country, and the wages of workingmen were to be increased. There was a great outcry at the excessive importations made during the spring of 1890 so as to escape the increased duties of the tariff, the republicans claiming that these importations were in the nature of an attack or our infant industries.

The fall elections took place, and the republican party was practically swept out of the house of representatives. Up to that time no such political revolution had ever been witnessed in this country. The result was startling lesson to the McKinlevites They saw that the people understood their little game of high protection for the benefit of manufacturers, and in the present campaigns in the east as well as in the west they have entirely changed their tune. Mc-Kinley himself has been the first to right about face, and the arguments he now employs are entirely different from those he. employed last fall.

We are now told that the great idea of protection is reciprocity and free trade. The fraudulent reciprocity scheme which both Brother Blaine and Mr. Benia. min Harrison claim to have invented is held up as the chief corner-stone of protection, and assurance is given that a large handful of free trade jiblets has been put in the high tariff soup. It is a queer reversal of argument and promise, but it is made necessary by the temper of the voters of the country.

While the Mills bill was pending in the democratic house, McKinley and the rest of the republicans declared that its free trade features would be the ruin of the industries of the country, but now, with a sinister anxiety to avoid the issue and muddy the argument, McKinley is declaring to his Ohio audiences that his high tariff law goes as far in the direction of free trade as the Mills bill purposed to go. Thus in this great law, we have high protection, reciprocity and free trade. All you have to do 1 to vote the republican ticket and take your

Mr. McKinley takes up a good deal of his time in dwelling on the benefits of free sugar, though he says nothing of the bounty tax that comes out of the pockets of th people. He declares that sugar has been cheapened by taking off the tariff tax, but he bitterly denies that other articles just as necessary as sugar are made dearer by the imposition of a tariff tax. Thus he goes swinging around the circle in Ohio, leaving his hearers in a befuddled condition over their efforts to solve the problem which he presents. They go about asking themselves how it is that, if the imposition of tariff tax makes an article no dearer, the taking of it off makes it cheaper. The answer to this question involves the defeat of McKinley in Ohio next month and the repeal of his tariff law.

THE BELLED buzzard from Georgia is still flying around the country. Mr. McKinley should catch this bird and pin on him a badge made of counterfeit American tin.

SINCE THE advent of Miss Ruth Cleveland Baby McKee has grown somewhat commo place. This fact ought to fetch Papa McKee out of his hiding place.

GOVERNOR CAMPBELL is still hunting for the Ohio man who has had his wages raised by the McKinley tariff law. AN EARLY number of The New Englan Magazine will have an illustrated article de-voted to Atlanta. The article is from the per of Rev. George Leonard Chaney, who was for some years a resident here. Dr. Chaney has writen sympathetically and appreciatively. We we had the privilege of axamining the advance sheets, and we think his article is the most satisfactory description of Atlanta that has yet been written. Mr. Allen H. Wood, who is representing The New England Magazine, is in the city.

McKinley is of the opinion that Governor Campbell is the sassiest man in Ohio. But no honest man can be truly dignified while he s discussing the McKinley tariff fraud.

"It is noted as a curious circumstance that George Francis Train predicted Parnell's death nearly a week ago. Last Thursday evening, at a dinner attended by a number of newspaper men, Train, in the midst of one of his wild harangues, 'Boulanger is dead, Balmaceda is dead, and Parnell will be a corpse within a week.' This prophecy was received with incredulous smiles, and Train, as quoted by one of those present, ran on in this style; 'Ye are idiots who laugh. The revolution is on. The people will rise. I am the apostle of hypnotism. Death, devastation and disease are in the air. Two adventurers are dead; the third. THE NEW YORK thieves may be classed am the "unterrified." Thomas Wellington, of that city, a thief of unusual nerve, who has frequently figured in modest raids, conceived the idea of robbing the famous thief-catcher, Inspector Byrnes. His desire to do so became uncontrolla-ble, and culminated in his relieving the inspector of a solid silver club, which had been pres to him some time ago. The thief was finally ar-rested, and was taken to police headquarters, but his daring will probably save him from a long sentence, and when he emerges from his involuntary confinement he will find himself celebrated

The Post-Dispatch says it is the general verdict in that section that McKinley's speech was a piti ful collapse. It was thought that when face face with his antagonist he would worth defend his own measure, but instead he occupi nost of his time with the silver question and of the tariff answered not a single one of Campi-bell's criticisms. Dealing in glittering general-ties and spread-eagle Americanism he practically confessed that he had concocted a law which ne was not able to defend. The pipe of peace has been prepared, but he smokers have not yet taken a single whiff. Their differences are as from amicable adjustment as ever, and Congressman Livingston and Governor Northen do not speak, as they this despite the persistent and industrious efforts of mutual friends who have been denominated as the "peace commission," and who have been passing to and fro between these gentlemen, trying to get things smoothed over between But it does seem at present, as if there will be "no kissing and making up," as has been predicted.

On the contrary the warfare between these eaders will continue to be waged with as much fierceness as ever. Governor Nortuen was asked yesterday: "Have any membersof the peace commission called on you in regard to an adjustment of the differences between yourself and Colonel Livingston ?" The governor smiled. "I would prefer not to answer that ques tion," said he; "in fact, I would prefer not to say anything about the matter at all."

When questioned as to whether or not he knew of the existence of what has been dubbed "the peace commission," the governor smiled of talk about it, but did not know that it had been organized into a commission. The commission has been in active existence for about two weeks, and has been busily en gaged seeking to arrange a handshaking tween the chief executive of the state and the ongressman from the fifth district. The commission has tried to unloose the white dove of peace, but these gentlemen refuse to have that bird flutter over them.

Colonel Lavingston was not in the city yes terday, and has not been for several days, and consequently the committee has not had the opportunity to pursue its work as it would wish. What he would say to an adjustment of the differences existing between himself and Governor Northen, is not known, but his friends say that he would not "make up" without some very great concessions on the part of Governor Northen. Governor Northen's friends declare that no concessions will be made by him.

This is the status of affairs at present, and this the work accomplished by the peace commission since it first sprang into life.

So it seems that the object of its existence will not be accomplished, but it pursues the even tenor of its way, murmuring to itself the Biblical statement: "Blessed is the peacemaker.

ETCHED AND SKETCHED.

The case of the bark Wanderer, upon which General Henry R. Jackson will address the Young Men's Library Association in November, was one of the most famous trials in the history of this country's jurisprudence. She brought over the last cargo of slaves ever landed in the United States. That was just before the war a year or two. The negroes were bought from the slave traders of Africa. They were Congo river negroes. Several of them are still living along the Ogeechee river in Chatham, Bryan and Liberty coun-

Two years ago I saw one and had a talk with him. He was short and strongly built, but how old he was it was impossible to tell. He did not know himself and his face did not tell, but it is likely that he was fifty-five. When he was first captured in his barbaric home he was a little boy. He remembered that his tribe lived along a clear, sparkling One day his tribe's village was attacked by another tribe, and, a great many were killed Some escaped, but he and a number more were captured. They expected to be cooked and eaten by their enemies for they were all cannibals, his own tribe as well as the others. But he was not barbecued. Instead he and the rest of the prisoners were marched a long ways and sold to traders. Then the traders marched them farther and farther until they reached

All the time they were chained together so that they could not get away. They had no idea what their fate would be. In fact they had never seen but two white men and they had eaten those. They knew they were being carried into captivity of course, but what they could not learn was how and when they would be cooked. Coming from the heart of darkest Africa, they had precious little intelligence and could not understand a word of anything except their own tongue, and that is throat ever uttered. Even now it is a hard matter to understand their lingo. Finally they were loaded on the Wanderer, put down in the holds, scores and scores of them. The most striking figure in General Jackson's famous speech at the close of the trial, was a picture of the sickness and death during the voyage. Hence, I asked this negro, Loango, how he and his countrymen stood the voyage. Loango was not a graphic discription conversationalist, but he fully warranted General Jackson's words, which, in effect, were that if the sea could be rolled back, the course of the Wanderer could be traced from continent to continent by the ghastly skeleton mileposts at the bottom, for as death struck down from day to day her wretched barbaric human freight the corpses were thrown into the waves. So forcible was this part of the orator's speech that a shudder ran over his hearers.

There is one man who can reproduce from nemory that remarkable speech almost in its entirety. The gentleman is Colonel Charlton H. Way, one of Georgia's commissioners to the world's fair. It is told that on the closing day of the trial, Colonel Way sugg to Judge Jackson, as he was known, not to make his speech too literary and flowery. "No, Charley, I shall not indulge in any flights of fancy," General Jackson replied. But he has a brilliant, poetic mind and his opening sentence was a bit of beautiful imagery. His entire ch was a continuous pro and thrilling periods.

I omitted to mention above a hideous peculiarity of those negroes—four of the front teeth in the upper jaw were missing. It was a tribal mark. Loango said that the teeth were knocked out when they were young. Slavery in a civilized country was better for those creatures than freedom in their dark, itish, forest life. The Ogeochee negro has a dialect of his own, hard enough to understand at its best, and those of the Wanderer's cargo who survive have a gibberish which is barely intelligible to one well acquainted with the negro

Judge Twiggs, of Augusta, was at the Kimoall yesterday. He stated that Augusta's exposition is coming on well and great crowds are expected, as the show will be a fine one.

Groups of interested spectators stood around the Grady monument all yesterday and watched the progress of the work. Son it did not occur to a great many that it is usual to make statues, which are to be mounted on high pedestals, of heroic size. A life-size figure would not give such a good effect. In matters of this this kind it is a safe rule to take it for granted that the artist's judgment is right.

A well-known case in point was that of a painting of a hunt in which a horse's legs were criticised until the artist produced a collection of instantaneous photographs showing that his drawing was correct and natural.

The gentleman whose Malmsey wine of 1815 vas referred to in this column the other day, writes a personal letter, mentioning in the course of it that there is in his cellar brandy of 1795. Think of brandy nearly a hundred years old! He has sherries seventy-five years old and ports without end.

THE STATUE IN PLACE

Curious Crowds Gather About the Base of the Monument.

THE COMMITTEE OFF TO NEW YORK.

The Line of March Arranged-The Proces sion to Form at the Capitol and Move to the Monument.

The arrangements for the ceremonies at tending the unveiling of the Grady monument grow larger day by day, and the plans have to be expanded continually to take in those who delight to honor Mr. Grady's memory.

It will be a monster procession that will leave the capitol at 10 o'clock next Wednesday morning. The order has not been arranged, but the main features will be:

The governor and staff mounted. The Fourth Georgia battalion of in fantry.

The Governor's Horse Guards.

The Atlanta Artillery. Companies of visiting military-infantry, cavalry and artillery.

The Confederate Veterans. The O. M. Mitchell post, Grand Army of the Republic. Labor organizations and all civil soci-

The police, horse and foot. The Atlanta fire department.

The newsboys. And the committee hopes to have: Five thousand school children in line!

The statue of Henry W. Grady was placed upon its pedestal yesterday, and though the face was carefully veiled, the pose and proportions of the figure could be distinctly seen. As a matter of course, the appearance of a bronze figure of heroic size in the middle of the street attracted attention, and especially so as the subject was so well known. The great size of the statue is the first thing that strikes you. On account of its size it is best seen at a little distance, say fifty yards. A person standing immediately at the foot of the pedestal is so far below the statue that he cannot see it in its natural aspect. All the proportions seem exaggerated there, but as you recede toward the corner of the opera house, the figure becomes more animated In the twilight or early dawn, you might imagine it an orator addressing an assembled multitude, the right elbow thrown up, and the forearm bent horizontally across the chest, as the hand pauses there before one of those en ergetic, sweeping, graceful gestures of the powerful and well-proportioned arm. The statue was hoisted about 11 o'clock by means of ropes attached to the trunk and limbs and drawn up by the derrick It was fixed upon the pedestal by means of prongs securely set in the stone.

The figures are closely covered and will not again be exposed to public view until it is unveiled by Miss Gussie Grady next Wednesday. She and her mother are now in New York, but will reach Atlanta in ample time for the unveiling ceremonies. At the base of the pedestal on east side is a bronze wreath about three feet long. It looks like a simple piece of metal, but it cost $540 to cast. The cost of this one item shows the expensive character of the work.

Since the monument began to assume shape, curious crowds have watched it, and the figures-especially the side figures of Grief and History-have been the subjects of queer comment. On Monday night, after the side figures had been put up, and before the Grady statue had been brought within sight of the pedestal, a group of men and boys stood around the monument talking. Two of them were looking at the figure of the muse of History, when one of them remarked:

"That don't look a bit like Grady. Look at that bare arm; you never saw Grady with his arm bare in your life."

"Hush, you fool," said the other. Don't you see it's the statue of a woman?' The method by which these statues are made is an interesting one. In making the statue of a man, the first thing to do is to make a man as nature made him. without a vestige of clothing. It is only in that way that the true proportions of the human body may be copied. When this has been done the vestments are added and the work is complete.

The Line of March Colonel Calhoun, the marshal of the day, will make up the order of procession as soon as all the organizations desiring to take part have reported. He will hold open the list until Friday, by which time all notifications must be on his desk.

The line of march has been agreed on and will be as follows: The procession will form at the capitol and move down Mitchell street to Whitehall, on Whitehall to Alabama, on Alabama to Loyd, Loyd to Decatur, Decatur to Pryor, Pryor to Peachtree, Peachtree to Marietta and on Marietta to the monument.

Colonel Calhoun's aides will be the members of his staff in the Fourth Georgia battalion, with possibly some additions. The Grand Army Will Take Part.

President Northen, of the Grady Monument Association, yesterday afternoon tendered an invitation to the O. M. Mitchell post, Grand Army of the Republic, to take part in the unveiling ceremonies attending the unveiling of the statue next Wednesday. The official through whom the invitation was extended promptly assured Mr. Northen that it would be accepted, and the Grand Army would be represented in the procession. The School Children.

It is the earnest desire of the committee that the public schools of the city will take a prominent part in the ceremonies of next Wednesday. Mr. Grady was a great lover of children and there could be no more moving speciacle than seven thousand school children marching in a procession on the day of the unveiling. The march is short one, and the arrangements for it would be simple and easily made.

The banquet of the Young Men's Democratic League!

Next to the ceremonies attendant upon the unveiling of the monument, the league banquet will be the great event of next week. Extensive arrangement have been made to make this one of the most unique affairs of the kind ever given in the south, and while the attendance has purposely been limited, nothing will be left undone to make the banquet the most elegant ever spread in At-

The banquet will take place in the breakfast room of the Kimball house, and in marked contrast to the lateness of the hour at which other banquets have been served, this one will begin promptly at half-past 7 o'clock.

There will be seats for only 150 people, and of this number fifty will be reserved for the invited guests in the persons of distinguished democratic visitors, who will be in the city at the unveiling of the Grady monument and other specially invited guests from Georgia and the surrounding states, who have responded to the invitations of the committee.

Get Your Tickets Early.

As there are only 100 seats reserved for the league and such other citizens as may desire to attend the banquet, it is very important that the list of those who propose to attend be closed at once. Chairman Harvey Johnson, of the banquet committee, and Chairman Slaton, president of the league, have been giving this matter their attention, and expect to have every seat full in the course of a day or two. Already about seventy-five applications have been made from the city, each one of which is ompanied by a check for $12.50.

In putting the tickets at $12.50 the committee of the league thought that this was the best way in which to entertain the distinguished democratic guests of Atlanta, and while the cost of a ticket represents more than the actual cost per seat at the banquet, it can be readily understood that the difference will cover the cost of the plates of the guests of the evening.

It is to be hoped that no representative Atlantian, who may be called upon by the committee, will refuse to make a donation to the entertainment in the shape of the purchase of a ticket which will enable the holder to be present at the banquet, and at the same time enable him to do in part his duty as an Atlan-Only One Hundred Wanted

The Speakers.

Governor Hill, of New York, will of course be the leading speaker of the evening, and it is probable that General Slocum and others of his party will be called on.

Mayor Hemphill will probably do some talking for Atlanta as a democratic city, and Governor Northen will say something for the state. Arrangements for the speaking have ot vet been concluded, and t will be announced as soon as it is determined

THE UNKNOWN DEAD

May Be a Montgomery, Ala., Fruit Dealer Who Recently Mysteriously Disappeared. The unknown foreigner who was killed by Western and Atlantic train Monday morning was found to be an Italian.

After lying in the undertaking establishnent of Wylie & Barclay all Monday after noon and yesterday morning, he was buried yesterday afternoon without identification. Several theories as to the identity of the man have been advanced, but the most plausi-ble one comes from Montgomery, Ala.

Was he a wealthy Montgomery fruit mer That is now the question, and here is the story that suggested it: About ten days ago a well-known and sup-posed-to-be wealthy fruit merchant mysteri-ously disappeared. His store was closed for several days and nothing was seen of him.

The fruit store was well known, as was its proprietor, and it being closed so long was its proprietor, and it being closed so long created some alarm.

After exhausting every effort to find the fruit dealer, it was decided to break open the door and see if any clue to his whereabouts could be secured.

The store was found to contain nothing that could be used as a clue to further search. All the goods, change, etc., were in their accustomed places. tomed places.

tomed places.

The Montgomery papers have had a great deal to say about the disappearance, but not a word from the missing man has been heard.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Meyers, a well-known traveling man, who spent Monday in Montgomery and knows the missing Italian well, saw the picture of the dead man, as produced in the papers, and said he believed that it was the missing fruit dealer. Mr. Meyers says it is the opinion in Montgomery that the fruit dealer has been foully dealt with, but the picture produced in the papers, of the man killed by the Western and Atlantic train, very much resembles him.

The membership, which is now seventy-five, will, Captain Fuller predicts, be more than doubled by the next meeting. Many applications were received yesterday.

Colonel Abbott says he will procure a charter without cost.

For the present the society will be given the use of the veteran's hall, but it is designed to secure permanent quarters of its own so soon as the organization is completed.

TALK FOR THE GRADY MONUMENT.

The Big Fair for That Institution Should Be the Next Thing in Order-Other Social Events.

In all the excitement over the unveiling of the monument which is to stand in the heart of the city, to commemorate Henry W. Grady, let us not forget that other great monument being built—not in so prominent a location, but destined to be ever close to the hearts of the people. That is, of course the Grady hospital. Chairman Joseph Hirsch is un-tiring in his work for the hospital, and his work bears fruit. One of his plans for the hospital, and one of which if taken hold of by the public in earnest is sure to bring the best kind of results, is for a great fair to be given in the early winter. With Mr. Hirsch at the head of such a fair, it is certain to be a great success in every way. That means first and foremost, a financial success—that is the end desired Every person in Atlanta should stand ready to do everything in his or her power for this means foremost. A later week as is profor this magnificent work. A fair such as is proposed will give each and all a chance to help. The success of such an undertaking depends prima-rily upon the ladies, and to them Mr. Hirsch looks for assistance now. It is proposed to take hold of this work at once, and to that end every lady who is willing to take part, is requested to send her

The Grady hospital fair should be a great suc cess. The ladies have it in their power to make it that. Don't put off sending in your name—let the good work begin at once.

Upon Thursday evening Captain Robert Lowry will entertain a party of friends at a supper at the clubhouse. The party will drive out by moonlight on Captain Lowry's tally-ho and in other elegant ages, and have the cosiest of evenings at the tty Piedmont club. The idea is a grateful and charming innovation in the ranks of formal en-tertainments, and everybody invited is sure of the merriest of times, for Captain Lowry is an ideal host, and is always making society the brighter by his ways of giving pleasure.

A certain number of young and prominent so-ciety matrons propose this winter to give, in honor of each other, a series of informal luncheons, at which to meet in the most sociable way. These will obtain every week or so, and at them no elab-orate menu will be served, but everything will be sweet, homelike and tasteful. The idea is a delightful and refined one, bringing out the real meaning of true hospitality. It is positively ab-surd for a woman to feel that she can't entertain her friends without giving a great feast. People who hold such ideas never make graceful host-esses, and this giving of small, homelike affairs puts both hostess and guests at their ease.

A good many pleasant whist parties are being flong winter evenings, and after these delightful informals, suppers are enjoyed at the houses

CONSULTING ABOUT WATER PIPES.

The Water Commissions Confer with Mr. Queen.

Yesterday Mayor Hemphill, Judge Hillyer, Mr. Frank Rice, Mr. Howell Erwin, Mr. J. C. Hendricks and Superintendent Richards, of the board of water commissions, had a long consultation about water pipes with Mr. Queen, representing the manufacture of the Bessemer pipes, which it is proposed to use for the Atlanta waterworks.

No definite action was taken, but the board was evidently willing to close the contract with Mr. Queen, which may be done soon. A Card.

Death of Mrs. Buchanan.

Mrs. H. U. Buchanan, wife of Mr. R. H. Buchanan, died at her home yesterday morning at 4 o'clock. She had been sick for several months and her condition for the past few days was such that death came not unexpectedly.

Mrs. Buchanan was formerly a resident of Cov-ington, Ga. She was a Baptist and a most consistent Christian. Her many friends will be grieved at the loss of an estimable woman.

The funeral will take place this morning. Mrs.
Buchanan will be taken to her old home at 8 o'clock and there laid to rest in the family burial grounds.

Death of Mr. McDermott. Mr. Thomas McDermott, an employe of THE CONSTITUTION, died last evening at the home of

Mr. J. Warren Smith, corner of Woodward ave nue and Terry street. He had been sick for sev-eral days from a severe attack of typhoid pneumo-nia and his death was not unexpected. Mr. McDermott came to Atlanta from Indian apolis about a year ago and during that time made many friends who will hear of his death with sincerest sorrow. On Friday Mr. McDer-mott's father was telegraphed for and he arrived here on Sunday afternoon.

The young man was a member of the Atlanta Typographical Union and a delegation from this organization will act as an escort this afternoon at the funeral. The body will be sent to Indianapolis for burial.

The Atlanta Straw Hat Manufacturing Com pany will start business under the happies spices. The mayor and members of the general council and a number of other citizens have been invited by Mr. H. H. Bussey, president of the company, to witness the interest-ing process of hat-making. Tomorrow morning the operatives will show the visitors the evolution of a straw hat from the crude material to the finished product.

Yesterday afternoon a Constitution re-corter was shown through the factory, at No. 1694 Marietta street. The building is commodious, the two upper stories being used the company. There are eight rooms in the factory, each one used for a special purpose.

For a long time Mr. Bussey has thought that a straw hat manufactory in Atlanta would pay well. There is no such factory south of Baltimore, and yet the great bulk of the trade in straw hats is done in the southern states. Mr. Bussey succeeded in interesting some of the prominent Atlanta business men in his project, and he at once began to prepare for work. He secured gan to prepare for work. He secured as a practical superintendent of the shop Mr. C. H. Buchanan, of Philadelphia, a man thoroughly up in every detail of the business. He has had a long experience in the hat factories of England, and is an artisan of unrivaled skill in the working of straw, not only into hats, but into numberless useful and beautiful

Mr. Buchanan told yesterday many inter-esting facts touching the manufacture of straw hats. The Atlanta company will be fully able, he says, to compete with the old established hat factories in the north and east, and will control the greater part of the southern precisely three minutes and a half a perfect hat was made.

Mr. Buchanan says he employs the best class of girl operatives. He expects to have at work in a very short time about thirty hands, most of them girls. Each one of these operatives, when she becomes skillful, can make about sixty-five hats a day. An expert can complete a hat in four minutes. The machines used are made a pacially for this work, and can make made specially for this work, and can make 2,100 stitches a minute. The straw is all imported.

It comes from China and Italy in hanks, braided, some sixty yards to the piece. Each bale contains 240 pieces. Formerly there was a duty of 27 per cent on this straw, but now it comes in free. It is laid down in Atlanta as cheap as the northern and eastern manufacturers can buy it, for it is brought here in the original packages. All the straw is plaited before it is shipped, and the work is done by hand by women in China and Italy, who earn only about six cents a day. Most of the straw is dyed here.

These are at once taken to another room where they receive a coating of glue. Then they are steamed a moment over an ingenious contrivance, after which they are placed on the block and pressed into shape by a steam masher. All this requires only a few minutes, and the hat is finished, ready for the warer.

Mr. Buchanan says that he has already enough orders to keep him busy the entire winter. At present he will make mostly cheap grades of hats, but he is prepared to turn out as fine an article of head gear as is made by any factory in the United States.

BLEEPING CAR COMPANIES EXCLUDED

From the Bill Putting Express, Telegraph and Sleeping Car Companies Under the Railroad Commission.

Yesterday was another day of work with but little talk in the house.

All house bills had been disposed of Monday night, and yesterday was devoted to bills that bave passed the senate and house bills amended by that body.

The house concurred in the senate amendment, striking out sleeping car companies from the bill to place express, telegraph and sleeping car companies under the railroad commis-

Many members of the house objected to this and there was quite a fight over it, but finally this amendment was agreed to and the Pullman company is out of it, so to speak The most important work of the day the passage of Colonel Huff's bill to establish a normal school as a branch to the State uni-

House Routine.

The house passed Mr. Huff's bill, providing for a state normal school in connection with the university, the school to occupy the "Rock college" building, in Athens.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the assistant attorney general to employ a stenographer at $50 a month.

Express and Telegraph Companies. The bill to extend the powers of the railroad commission over express, telegraph and sleeping car companies was called up and debated for quite a time.

The senate struck sleeping cars out of the bill. This aroused Mr. Fleming's indignation. He declared that if the other companies were to go under a commission there were ten times more reason why the sleeping car companies should likewise go under the commission. He declared it was an outrage for sleeping car companies to put down an upper berth when it had no occupant. He declared that if there was but one occupant of a car and he in a lower berth the company would close the upper one down on him, in order to force him to pay on it. The Georgia and Central roads, he said, don't impose on their passengers like this, and the Pullman Car Company should be forced to do as

Mr. Davis, of Burke, argued against putting sleeping cars under the commission. He declared if the house wanted to prevent the Pullman company from putting down its upper berth, it had best pass a bill to that effect alone, and not encumber the commission with additional expense.

Mr. Goodwin, of Fulton, argued that the Pullman cars should remain in the bill if the house was determined to pass it. The house concurred in the senate amendment striking out sleeping car companies, and the sleepers are free.

Senate Bills Passed by the House. The following bills passed the house yester-

To provide for the probate of foreign wills, "To relieve the Commercial Alliance Life Insurance Company, of New York.

To extend landlords' lieus to stock.

"THE WAR IS OVER---LET US HAVE PEACE."

"THE WAR IS OVER--LET US HAVE PEACE."

(Banquet Army of the Tennessee, Palmer House, Chicago, Thursday evening, October 8, 1891.)

In response to the toast, "The War Is Over-Let Us Have Peace," Mr. Henry Watterson spoke substantially as follows:

I believe that, at this moment, the people of the United States are nearer together in all that constitutes kindred feeling and interest than they have been at any time since the adoption of the federal constitution. If it were not so, I should hardly venture to come here and talk to you as I am going to talk tonight. As it is, surrounded though I be by union soldiers, my bridges burned, and every avenue of escape out off, I am not in the least discouraged or alarmed. On the contrary, I never felt safer or happier or more at home. Indeed, I think that, supported by your presence and sustained by these commissary stores, I could stand a siege of several months and hold out against incredible odds. It is wonderful how circumstances after cases; for it was not always so. I am one of the many witnesses who live to tell the story of a journey to the moon and back! It may not be that I have any marvels of personal adventure or any prodigies of individual valor to relate, but I do not owe my survival to the precaution taken by a member of the confederate battery commanded by the brave Captain Howell, of Georgia. It was the habit of this person to go to the rear whenever the battery got well under fire. At last Captain Howell called him up and admonished him that, if the breach of duty was repeated, he would shoot him down as he went without a word. The reply came on the instant: "That's all right cap'n; that's all right; you can shoot me; but I'il be dadburned if I'm going to let thein dari'd yankees do it!" I at least gave you the opportunity, to krysand I am much your debtor that, in inj case, your marksmanship was so defective.

debtor that, in my case, your marksmanship was so defective.

You have been told that the war is over. I think that I, myself, have heard that observation. I am glad of it. Roses smell sweeter than gunpowder; for everyday uses, the carving-knite is preferable to the bayonet, or the saber; and, in a contest for first choice between cannon balls and, whee corks, I have a decided prajudice in favor of the latter!

The war is over; and it is well over. God reigns, and the government at Washington still lives. I am glad of that. I can conceive nothing worse for our-cives, nothing worse for our-children, than what might have been if the war had ended othfor our-elves, nothing worse for our children, than what might have been if the war had ended otherwise, leaving two exhausted combatants to become the prey of foreign intervention and diplomacy, setting the clock of civilization back a century, and splitting the noblest of the continents into five or six weak and warring republics, like those of South America, to repeat in the new world the mistakes of the old.

The war is over, truly; and, let me repeat, it is well over. If anything was wanting to proclaim its termination from housetops and doorpost in the land, that little brush we had last spring with Signor Macaroni furnished it. As to the touch of an electric bell, the whole people rallied to the brave words of the secretary of state, and, for the moment, sections and parties sunk out of sight and thought in one over-mastering sentiment of racehood and nationality.

I shall not stop to inquire whether the war made us better than we were. It certainly made us better acquainted, and, on the whole, it seems to me that we are none the worse for that better acquaintance. The truth is, the trouble between us was never more than skin deep; and the curious thing about it is that it was not our skin anyhow! It was the black skin, not a white skin, that brought it about.

As I see it, our great sectional controversy was, from first to last, the gradual evolution of a people from darkness to light, with no charts or maps to guide them, and no expressors.

ple from darkness to light, with no charts or maps to guide them, and no experience to lead the

to guide them, and no experience to the way.

The framers of our constitution found themselves unable to fix decisively and to define accurately the exact relation of the states to the federal government. On that point they left what may be described as an "open point," and through that open clause, as through an open door, the grim specter of dispussion stalked. It was attended on one hand by African slavery; on the other hand by sectional jealousy, and between this trio of evil spirits, the household flower of peace was torn from the lintel and tossed into the flames of war.

the other hand by sectional jeasons, and between this trio of evil spirits, the household flower of peace was torn from the lintel and tossed into the dames of war.

In the beginning, sall of as were guilty landequally guilty, for African slavery. It was the good fortune of the north first to find out that slave labor was not profitable. So, very sensibly, it sold its slaves to the south, which, very disastrously, pursued the delusion. Time at last has done its perfect work; the south sees now, as the north saw before it, that the system of slavery, as it was maintained by us, was the cluminest and costliest labor system on earth, and that when we took the field to fight for it, we set out upon a fool's errand. Under slave labor, the yield of cost ton never reached five, millions bales. Under free labor, it has never falien below that figure, gradually ascending to six and seven, until this year it is about to reach nearly nine million bales.

This tells the whole story. I now not here to talk.

year it is about to reach meany the bales.

This tells the whole story. I am not here to talk politics of course. But I put it to you whether that is not a pretty good showing for free black labor, and whether, with such a showing, the southern whites can afford any other than just and kind treatment to the blacks, without whom indeed the south would be a briar patch, and half our national gold income a gaping hole-in-the-ground!

Continuous I beg that you will not be appre-

Gentlemen, I beg that you will not be appre-ensive. I know full well that this is neither a hensive. I know full well that this is neither a time nor place for abstract economics; and I am not going to afflict you with a dissertation upon free trade, or irree silver. I came, primarily, to bow my head and to pay my measure of homage to the statue that was unveiled today. The career and the name which that statue commemorates belong to me no less than to you. When I follow him to the grave-proud to appear in his obsequies, though as the obscurest of those who bore any officral part therein—I felt that I was helping to bury, not only a great man, but a true friend. From that day to this the story of the life and death of General Grant has more and true friend. From that day to thus the story of the life and death of General Grant has more and more impressed and touched-ine.

I never allowed myself to make his acquaint-ance until he had quitted the white house. The period of his political activity was full of uncouth and unsparing partisan contention. It was a kind of civil war. I had my duty to do, and I did not dare trust myself to the subduing influa kind of civil war. I had my duty to do, and I did not dare trust myself to the subduing influence of what I was sure must follow friendly relations between such a man as he was and such a man as I knew myself to be. In this I was not mistaken, as the sequel proved I met him for the first time beneath my own vine and fig tree, and a happy series of accidents, thereafter, gave me the opportunity to meet him often and to know him well. He was the embodiment of simplicity, integrity and courage; every inch a general, a soldier and a man; but in the circumstances of his last illness, a figure of heroic proportions, for the contemplaman; but in the circumstances of his last illness, a figure of heroic proportions for the contemplation of the ages. I recall nothing in history so subline as the spectacle of that brave spirit, broken in fortune and in health, with the dread hand of the dark angel ciutched about his throat, struggling with every breath to hold the clumsy, unfamiliar weapon with which he sofight to wrest from the jaws of death a little something for the support of wife and children when he was gone! If he had done nothing else, that would have made his exit from the world an immortal epic!

A little while after I came home from the last scene of all, I found that a woman's hand had collected the insignia I had worn in the magnificent.

seene of all, I found that a woman's hand had col-lected the Insignia I had worn in the magnificent, melancholy pageant—the orders assigning me to duty and the funeral scarfs and badges—and had grouped and framed them; unbidden, silently, tenderly; and when I reflected that the hands that did this were those of a loving southern woman, whose father had fallen on the confederate side in the battle, I said: "The war indeed is over; let us have peace!" Gentiemen: Soldiers; comrades; schools of the state.

It is believed, indeed the assurance has already been given, that a handsome donation may be expected from the Peabody fund. This assurance comes from the highest possible source, and the friends of the university throughout the state are elated at the idea, that the greatest objection which has heretorore been urged against the university can never hereafter be made.

As has already been stated, this was the last bill passed in the house at its present session, and Representative Huff said, in his remarks on the floor of the house, "that while he bad never seen the State university, and had never entered the door of a college, it gave him more pleasure than any official act

Explosives.

MR. D. U. SLOAN'S GREAT INVENTION.

Remarkable Experiment in a Garden on E. Mitchell Street-Dynamite as a Substitute for "Trenching."

Subsoiling with dynamite is the latest advance in scientific agriculture. Mr. D. U. Sloan, of Atlanta, has invented a method by which the hard ground may be broken up to a depth of two or three feet at a cost of $25 an acre. This work, he claims, is equal to the process of "trenching" used by market garleners to loosen the earth to a depth of two or three feet. Ground prepared in this way will absorb a great deal of water and sustain vegetation luxuriantly through a protracted drought. It will also receive and assimilate several times the quantities of fertilizers taken by the soil plowed to the usual depth, and, enriched to its full capacity, will sustain much heavier crops. It is possible in this way to make five bales of cotton or 250 bushels of corn to the acre. This has been demonstrated by the actual achievement of these results.

The great trouble heretofore has been the normous expense of trenching ground. As done by market gardeners, the work cost about one thousand six hundred dollars an acre. Consequently, but small patches are so treated. Mr. Sloan proposes to do the same work for $25 an acre, and so make intensive farming so economical that it will become the fashion, and the old surface scratching will be discarded. His plan in brief is to drill holes two to three feet deep and five feet apart, making 1,600 to the acre. In each he puts an explosive, and, after tamping, sets off the charge. When properly arranged, the explosive will disturb the surface of the ground very little, but will crack and pulverize in every direction but will crack and pulverize in every direction to a distance of two or three feet, according to the depth and quantity of explosive used.

Yesterday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, Mr. Charles L. Patterson and Mr. J. C. Thurman, representing the Refauno Chemical Company, arranged axplosives in twenty-eight holes dug in Mr. Sloan's garden, in rear of his residence, at 15 East Mitchell street. The plat was 25x40 feet and the holes were two feet deep. In each was one-fourth of a small-sized dynamite cartridge with about an ounce of Judson powder. Attached to an electric fuse, these cartridges, planted two feet deep, were exploded by means of a wire communicating with a battery. There was a dull, rumbling, smothered roar, and the whole surface of the ground appeared to be lifted two or three feet, while a few small clods sailed above the housetops.

When the smoke cleared away it was found that the ground was broken to the depth of thirty inches at the points of explosion, and broken sideways for a part of the distance between the holes. The plat was estimated, one-fortieth of an acre and the cost of the explosion.

tween the hoies. The plat was estimated, one-fortieth of an acre and the cost of the explosions in twenty-eight holes was 75 cents, including two hours labor in drilling the holes.

Mr. Patterson said it was only a question of experiment to see just how much powder to use, and at what depth—two feet or more—to place it to make it pulverize all the ground between the holes.

He offers to take contracts to break and pulverize the ground two feet deep for $25 an acre.

The Force of Habit.

Habit, so said, is second nature, but not necessarily true. We all admit that certain habits are quite strong and very hard to overcome. So much so that sometimes it seems impossible to break them. But with a proper amount of determination and perseverence lew, indeed, will fail. Habit sometimes becomes a disease. Then you need help. Lack of exercise, improper living, excessive indulgences, etc., often produce habitual constipation, and following this piles, fistula or some disease of the bowels which makes it necessary for you to have professional services. It is not only unnecessary for you to continuously take medicine, but it is decidedly injurious. Remove the effect and then treat the cause in a commonsense way and a cure will result. It takes time to do this, but if you persevere you will be fully repaid for the effort.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, October 13.—The stock market today was quiet with some spurts of activity in a few of the leading shares, and while there was considerable hammering of the lists by traders, a firm tone was displayed during the greater portion of the day, and slight gains were the rule at the close. Prices this morning were only slightly changed from those of last morning were only slightly changed from those of last avening, but there was no marked demand for stocks, and the necessities of the shorts again influenced them to make a drive at the list with no material result. The course of the market was soon changed, however under the stimulus of lower figures, and Sugar, Rock Island, Louisville, Chicago Gas and Atchison were prominent in the advance which followed. The rapidity of the upward movement was warning that the pace was too fast, and covering operations went on slower after that time, dullness again becoming one of the most prominent characteristics of the dealings. the most prominent characteristics of the dealings. Louisville was raided apparently to mask the buying of other stocks, and it retired 1 per cent, while the rest of the lists were kept within narrow limits. The rest of the lists were kept within narrow limits. The firm tone gradually overspread the entire market during the afternoon, while little or no feature was seen, in the trading until the last hour, when Coal stocks suddenly sprang into prominence, displaying the most pronounced strength, and they were the only shares which showed any material change at the close. The rest of the market failed to respond to this spurt, however, and the close was quiet to dull at spurt, however, and the close was quiet to dull at only slight changes from first prices. The final changes are all advances, but for slight fractions only, except in Lackawanna and Reading, which are each up 1 per pent. Trading reached 223,000 listed, and 3,000 unlisted.

Cahn & Co.'s Stock Letter.

By Private Wire to Youngblood & Haas. NEW YORK, October 13 .- The London market was a very poor purchaser of stocks at the opening, but later they began to sell stock all round the room, and parted with quite a lot of Louisville and Nashville. Phe market today was fairly strong, finduenced by the strength of the contraction of the contractions of t covering of a line of 15,000 shares of short stock that was put out by Mr. Cammack the last few days. The market was quite dull, but still he got his stocks very sasily. The Coal stocks were the strong spots. The Coal situation is in very good, shape, and if we have a cold winter we can be prepared to see much higher prices in those properties. Louis-ville and Nashville was weak; and the same can be stock is wetting quite fervish, and the same can be wille and Nashville was weak; and the feeling in this stock is getting quite fervish, and the same can be said of Northern Pacific preferred. The traders say these corporations have been issuing too many securities of late. Chicago Gas was fairly steady, still there seems a plentiful supply of this stock. It ought to look cheap at present prices. There is no doubt that the public have been quietly getting rid of their stocks, and unless something quite favorable develops we hardly look for any activity in the market. we hardly look for any activity in the market.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, October 11.—[Special.]—A lower market in Liverpool was generally expected this morning.

Expectations were realized by a decline of 3-64d and a less active demand on the spot. The enormous receipts at the ports today, and the probability of a continuance of the heavy movement remain the depressing factors here. The market opened at a decline of 4 points, declined 3 points more and then recovered slightly under the covering of shorts to again decline to the lowest fugure when the earlier estimates. decline to the lowest figure when the earlier estimates estimates of the large receipts were confirmed. At 2 o'clock prices were easier at 8.78 for January. The o'clock prices were easier at 8.78 for January. The phenomenal receipts exceed on an an average those of any previous year; and, while they do not shake taith in the belief that the crop is much smaller than that of last year, it is felt that so much cotton cannot be assimilated by markets already overstocked. The weather here today has been cold and rainy, but it is clear at the south, and nothing yet suggests itself as likely to impede the continued free movement of the crop. After 2 o'clock the market was weak upon the news of very heavy receipts at New Orieans tomorrow, of which the bears took advantage to raid the market. They were successful, and the closing has a very weak undertone at the lowest prices of the day. At 8.73 a large number of limited orders to buy were executed, but these purchases proved insufficient to stay the decline, and the general expectation is for lower prices tomorrow.

Lehman Bros.' Cotton Letter. By private wire to Youngblood & Haas.

NEW YORK, October 13—Our market to been exceedingly soft under the influence of Liverpool, the main weakness, however, being the un-precedented heavy receipts, which today aggregated about 73,000 bales, and again promise to be very heavy tomorrow, estimates for New Orleans being 25,000 bales. The receipts thus far this week for the three days past rue receipts thus far this week for the three days past aggregate 193,000 bales, and from present indications point to about $25,000 bales for the week, against $35,000 bales this week last year. It is not to be wondered at that values yield to this pressure which, for the moment, will remain the main factor in the situation, and are not unlikely to bring about temporarily lower prices still.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions. CHICAGO, October 13.—The wheat market was very bullish today with fair activity, and a decided advance was recorded, though the full appreciation was not held. The news was about all of a bullish character, near. The news was about air of a builtsh eparacter, and corn was on a builtsh rampage, and the builts were in the majority in the wheat pit. The shorts became frightened, and as offerings were very light an advance was the natural result. December opened at $95.60 $95.0, advanced steadily to $95.0, reacted to $95.0, grew strong again, advancing to $1.005., broke to $95.2, fluctuated some and closed at $95.0, against $28.0 at the close yesterday.

Corn was nervous, unsettled and higher. The S. V.
White corner seems to have drained the country of its surplus, for the marked advances since the collapse of that corner has failed to bring any considerable deliv-eries. #### Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter.

By Private Wire to Youngblood & Haas. CHICAGO, October 13.—The weakness caused by the government report and the agricultural reports of the different states seems to have spent its force on the opening yesterday morning, cables this morning bringing higher markets at Liverpool and London. The weather in the northwest continues wet, and in the southwest, where it is much needed, it remains the southwest, where it is much needed, it remains dry. Paris and Berlin markets were 'a shade lower. There were a few selling orders from the continent on speculative account, but the offerings were all absorbed and our market closed rather firm at about 10 higher than yesterday.

The London Times is out with a very bullish statement showing that the Englisu and French wants will be fully as large as the highest estimates. Receipts of corn were again light and the market very strong, [October leading the advance. Holders seem to have it about their own way, yet the shorts were able to supply their wants at the advance. The weather will have a great deal to do with the price of November corn. Should it continue dry in the southwest shelling will begin early. Should the wet season set in the movement will be very light, and in all probability prices will be maintained. ment showing that the English and French wants will will be maintained

The continued selling of December pork was the cause of a further decline in the hog product. The old pork at $8.50 per barrel looks very cheap. The parties who have a trade to supply would certainly do well toflay in good stocks on the present decline. We think there will be very little new pork go into consumption so long as the old can be bought at nearly three dollars per barrel less.

THE COURTS.

Three Tribunals Grinding Judicial Grist Slowly Yesterday.

1. EDWARD MORRIS PLEADS GUILTY.

A Big Mortgage Recorded-Dead Cases ied-A Murder Case for Today-A Charter Granted-Suits Filed.

The proceedings in the three courts which were running yesterday in the county courthouse, were devoid of any sensations. The criminal court ran out of business early in the morning and adjourned till today. The city court was engaged all day hearing one case, and Judge Marshall Clarke got rid of a few unimportant matters. The biggest item was thelt wo-and-a-quarter-million-dollar mortgage which was recorded in Judge Tanner's office. The usual number of damage suits were filed.

Dead Cases.

Yesterday morning Solicitor General Hill got rid summarily of twenty-three cases which for a long time had cumbered the dockets of the criminal court. Some of these were begun years ago, and for various reasons continued from term to term. In some of these cases the defendants sought to be tried are dead; in others they have fled the state; in others important witnesses are either dead or gene beyond the reach of the court, and in thers settlements have been made. these cases were stricken from the docket and marked "dead."

Visiting the Jail.

A committee of five members of the grand jury visited the county jail yesterday morning and thoroughly inspected the building and all the cells. The inspectors will report to the grand jury, when it convenes again about a month hence, that the building is in very bad condition, but that it is kept well by the officers in charge.

A Charter Granted.

The Atlanta Consolidated Bottling Com pany was incorporated yesterday. The capital stock is $50,000, of which $20,000 has al ready been subscribed. The incorporators are W. H. Beaumont, August Beaumont, John H. Hogan, Lee Hogan, H. G. Hanson and D. W. Liddell. The company will soon begin operations. The plant will be a large one and the projectors of the enterprise expect to do as large a business.in their line as is done by any factory in the south. The company will manufacture soda water, vinegar, cider, moxie, etc., and will do bottling for the retail

Husband and Wife Suc.

In the clerk's office of the city court there was yesterday filed a suit for $15,000 against the Atlanta Consolidated Street Railway Company. Mrs. Mary Schooler and her husband sue the road for personal damages to Mrs. Schooler. She was injured in one of the horse cars of the company, and she charges the company's servants with carelessness. the company's servants with carelessness. The suit was instituted by Messrs. P. L. A Big Mortgage. One of the largest mortgages ever given in One of the largest mortgages ever given in Fulton county was recorded yesterday morning in the office of the clerk of the superior court. The mortgager is the Atlanta Consolidated Street Railway Company, and the mortgagee is the Old Colony Trust Company, of Boston, Mass. The president of this company is Mr. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., grandson of Thomas Jefferson. Mr. Coolidge's father is the principal member of the company, and is the wealthiest man in Boston. The mortgage is for $2,500,000, and covers all the property present and future acquired, inproperty present and future acquired, in-cluding the road, roadbed and all other property, real, personal and mixed. The Old Cof-ony Trust Company is represented by Mr. Morris Brandon. The object of the mortgage is to issue bonds. He Pleaded Guilty. The announcement in The Constitution that the case of the state against J. E. Morris would be tried yesterday in Judge Richard H. Clark's court, caused a crowd to assemble in the courtroom. Mr. Morris was present and his mother was at his side. Messrs. Dorsey, Brewster & Howell were his counsel. Mr. Clifford Anderson, Jr., was present to assist Solicitor General Hill in the prosecution. With the details of Morris's crimes the readers of The Constitution are familiar. He was a trusted employe of the Southern Loan and Banking Company. The latter part of and Banking Company. The latter part of last December Morris suddenly left Atlanta. and Banking Company. The latter part of last December Morris suddenly left Atlanta. His unannounced departure aroused the suspicions of the officers of the company, who at once looked into his accounts. It was discovered that Morris was a defaulter. The exact amount of his shortage was never found out, but is in the neighborhood of one thousand dollars. Morris was arrested in New Orleans and brought back to Atlanta. Those who were the losers by his default were disposed to deal leniently with him, provided he would make good the shortage. Morris was indicted for larceny after trust, and was turned out on bail. Some weeks ago his bondsmen withdrew from his bond and he was sent back to jail, where he has been ever since. The friends of Morris made several attempts to raise the money required to make good his shortage, and it is said they raised about seven hundred and fifty dollars.

When the case was called yesterday morning it was aversed the preceding records.

When the case was called yesterday morn-When the case was called yesterday morning, it was expected the proceeding would be lively, but the trial was brought to an abrupt and by the defendan's pleading "guilty." He was remanded to jail, and Judge Clark reserved his sentence, which will be passed Saturday unless the case is settled in the mean-

A Verdict Set Aside. A few years ago George Milton, colored, was convicted of assault to murder. The conviction was secured on what was regarded as flimsy evidence. The verdict was a surprise, and sentence was reserved. Yesterday Judge C.ark, instead of passing sentence, set aside the verdict, and the defendant was set free.

A Murder Trial. A Murder Trial.

This morning the brothers McConnell, of East Point, who stand indicted for the murder of a negro named Thomas Waters, will be tried in Judge Richard H. Clark's court. A large number of witnesses have been subpensed. The defendants say they are confident of a speedy acquittal. penaed. The determination dent of a speedy acquittal.

The City Court.

In the city court of Atlanta, Judge Howard Van Epps presiding, the case of Ware & Owens vs. Mrs. Helen McKennon was resumed. It was given to the jury just before court called an additional description.

A little medicine of the right kind, taken at the right time, is invaluable. That means Carter's Little Liver Pills, and take them now.

A Splendid Investment.

Now that the summer has passed and the fall is here, we need to make an investment. If you do so, it will probably save you a large doctor's bill. Reference is made to footwear. R. C. Black, the popular Whitehall street shoe merchant, sells lla kinds of boots and shoes at most reasoanble prices. Tales from Town Topics.

Shoes That Fit. Shoes That Fig.

Did you ever wear a shoe that was uncomfortable and that made you think bad words every time you took a step? No doubt you have. R. C. Black, 33 Whitehall street, says that he has a large assortment of shoes for ladies and misses and children. They are made of the very best stuff, and fit you neatly, yet pleasantly.

Fashionable Footwear.
For fashionable shoes and slippers, R. C. Black's, & Whitehall, is still headquarters.

NATURE REVERSED. Four Half-Grown Kittens Killed and

Eaten by Rats. A complete reversion of nature. The eternal fitness of things has at least in one case been revolutionized. According to the laws of nature cats are supposed to eat rats, but some Atlanta rats have changed the programme, and have devoured a lot of cats.

A leading Atlanta merchant was greatly nnoyed and his stock damaged by rats, and concluded to get a supply of cats to destroy them. He got four half-grown kittens, an put them in his store. The kittens were fully half-grown, and the merchant was laughing in his sleeve as he watched in anticipation for the great surprise he had in store for the mischievous little varmints that had been causing him so much trouble.

But his anticipated happiness didn't mate-After arranging for this surprise party he started anxiously in search of the supposed half-eaten bedies of the deceased redents.

He soon found that he, and not the rats, was to suffer the surprise. He found small pieces of the bedies of two of his kittens scattered all arround the place. The rate hed killed two of around the place. The rats had killed two of the kittens and caten such of their bodies as they relished. The next morning he missed his other two kittens, and found that they, too, had been killed and eaten by the rats. "I feel that I cannot praise Hood's Sarsa-parilla half enough," says a grateful mother whose little son was almost blind with scrofula, and was cured by "the peculiar medicine."

A Substantial Sole. The weather is getting cool, and the people generally will be taking coids directly if they haven't on good footwear. During the fall and winter months people should wear shoes wift good, substantial soles in order to keep their feet dry. R. C. Black, at 35 Whitehall street, sells the very best shoes at reasonable prices. If you use his footwear you are not likely to have a cold. Brosius Motor Sewing Machines

A FAKIR'S TALE

A Ride Through Siberia with Archibald Forbes and Herrmann.

A GOOD STORY GRAPHICALLY TOLD.

How the Magician Gave a Lot of Exiles Happy Christmas-A Dinner with a General.

A great magician Herrmann undoubtedly is He is genuine, a magician and nothing else. But by way of variety perhaps, he carries with him the greatest fakir of his day and genera-

This man has a world-wide reputation. He is known everywhere, and is as noted in his particular line as Herrmann himself.

Blumedski-for that is his name-took no part in the entertainment here, and yet he was one of the most potent factors in making it a success. He is a little fat specimen of humanity-physically as nearly the opposite of Herrmann as two men can be. The sardonic expression, which is the stock in trade of the magician, gives place to rotund and perennial jollity in the face of the fakir. Where one could star as a lean and hungry Cassius, the other is in a fair way to take Stewart's place in the "Two Johns" or "Fat Men's Club." Where one makes a specialty of a rather fierce and military mustache, the other is content with a covering to his upper lip as round and as chubby—"chubby" goes—as the fakir himself. Yes, they are opposites in many ways; but they are friends, this magician and this fakir, and the story of their friendship covers a period of many years.

The fakir sat in the Kimball yesterday and told the story. He is an Arab-was once of street variety-with a Polish name, and the accent of a Parisian. The story goes without "The first time I met Herrmann," said the fakir, "was one bitter cold morning on a frontier town in Russia. He attracted my attention by his refreshing vocabulary of good English cuss words, as he paid his respects to a vanishing tarantass. At that time I was knocking about the world with Archibald Forbes, the famous war correspondent, and we were on our way to Asia Minor. Forbes had dispatches from Edmund Donavan, the intrepid war correspondent, and I was in the party. "Herrmann's face—and such a weird, un-canny face it was—was the picture of intense disappointment, and his attitude was one of utter dejection. "Approaching, I asked the nature of his trouble, addressing him in English and offer-ing my services. His face brightened up and he quickly replied: 'My dear sare, I am vary much deestressed. I must go to Kayala, and I am too late—too late. The guard has gone without me, and I now find I cannot get a-a-what do you call it?-a conveyance-yes, a conveyance.

"He spoke rapidly and gesticulated in a nervous, jerky way so characteristic of the French. His story was soon told. While relating some of his experiences as a traveler at a dinner given in his honor at St. Petersburg by several distinguished Russian officers, he was badgered into accepting a wager with the dashing General Kouropatkin, the successor of Skobeleff, that he dared not make the venturesome journey across the steppes to Kayala in midwinter and be there in time to dine with the general and his staff on Christmas day. An escort was promised him, and it was needed, for the disastrous campaign against the Turcomans had just ended and the country was overrun with lawless bands of freebooters. Herrmann found that the escort had been gone several days, and hence his dismay.

"Herrmann's distress was so genuine that Forbes at once offered him a place in our tarantass, a long, low, black vehicle on runners, to which was attached six horses. It pictured to him the hardships of the journey, myself; but he was firm in his resolution, and, quickly completing arrangements, we started on a ride, which, but for the never-failing good nature and superior entertaining quali ties of my versatile companion, would have been dreary indeed.

"The days passed wearily along-some in wild, fierce storms of snow and sleet that howl around us as though all the demons of the steppe were up in arms; some in bright sunshine, whose intolerable glare blinds us and blisters our faces. From time to time we drive into darksome underground holes, ho and reeking, hover around the steaming samovar, pouring down oceans of boiling tea then out on the silent steppe again, to con tinue our weary struggle.

'Herrmann submits to all discomforts without a murmur. His jollity is infectious. Ever out a murmur. His jollity is infectious. Even our imperturbable Kirghiz postilions smile at his little conceits and marvel at the wonders he performs. They look upon him as an emissary of the devil. Kayala is finally reached. Herrmann is surrounded by his friends, and the warmth of their greeting makes ample amends for the hardships he has undergone.

"'You have won,' says Kouropatkin, 'and you are none too soon, for Christmas in this country comes in advance of yours.'

"'Yes,' replied flermann, 'I have won, but I will not try it again. No, no. One such journey is enough.'

"The dinner occurs the next day, and, reluctantly, I consent to remain over. Naver journey is enough."

"The dinner occurs the next day, and, reluctantly, I consent to remain over. Never have I spent a more delightful Christmas. There is no limit to the hospitality of these dashing Russians. Away out on this barren plain, thousands of miles from civilization and our own comfortable firesides, we sit down to a repast fit for a king. Everybody contributed to the entertainment, a spirited song from to the entertainment, a spirited song from one, a recitation or a story from another, but one, a recitation of a story from another, but chief among them all was Herrmann with his inexhaustible store of tricks and his marvelous dexterity. The general's watch was found in the pocket of a subordinate, to the dismay of the latter and the delight of the assembled guests; a solid gold decoration which the major had carned in the Khivan campaign, and from which he never parted, was found in a bottle of wine: loaves of bread were transformed into oranges; cards disappeared mysteriously in the air; chairs were sent dancing around the room in the most provoking way; different kinds of wine were taken at will from one bottle, and live fowls were discovered in the most singular places. It was the most novel Christmas dinnerit ever was my fortune to attend. An entertainment full of surprises, and one that kept the guests in a hilarious state of merriment for several hours."

Blumedski smiles all over in recollection of the joys of that feast. Then he continues reflectively: chief among them all was Herrmann with his reflectively:

"When it was over Herrmann obtained per-"When it was over Herrmann obtained permission to visit the prisoners' quarters. What a contrast to the place we had just left! The poor wretches were huddled together like sheep. Their food was bad, their scant clothing afforded but poor protection from the frosty air, and their misery was made more unbearable by the harsh words and cruel blows of the keepers. Such a lot of haggard faces I never saw. Men whose eyes looked the despair that was slowly eating their lives away, and from whose hearts all hope had fled. Piteous looks of entreaty were cast upon us as we entered; glances so full of woe and misery that they would melt a heart of stone. The sympathetic magician took in the scene at a glance, and then began a performance misery that they would melt a heart of stone. The sympathetic magician took in the scene at a glance, and then began a performance that I have never seen equaled. Trick followed trick, each more wonderful than the preceding one. Amid the squalor and fifth of this wretched pen, surrounded by convicts of all grades and with the atmosphere foul and stifling, Herrmann remained for nearly two hours, performing as he never performed before. Faces that had not known a smile for years relaxed and the dingy walls echoed with joyous laughter. With a wave of his magic wand, the magician produced a Christmas tree laden with dainties; everybody was given a little present of some sort. In the delightful sensation of the moment the prisoners forgot their cares, their condition, their doom. Some were carried back to the innocent days of their childhood in far-off Russia, others were astonished at the almost supernatural powers of the man, and all were amused. Tears crept unbidden into the eyes of many when the time for departure came, and with hearts full of gratitude for the man who had given them the only taste of Christmas they had experienced in many years they bade us farewell."

"That was my first experience with Herr-"Thatwas my first experience with Herrmann," continued the speaker, as each of the little group around him had something to say about the story.

"I have seen much of him sence, and for three years I have been with him. It's a good story, isn't it?"

The little fat man leaned back to watch the effect of the story on his lightness.

effect of the story on his listeners. As he did so the scales dropped from the eyes of those who had been taking in the whole story and Blumedski, the prince of fakirs, became plain Eddie Bloom.

Then everybody began wondering whether the story was true.

The're still wondering.

AT THE THEATER.

Herrmann drew another big house last night and everybody was delighted with his unique entertainment. It is one well worth seeing.

"Spider and Fly" Tonight. M. B. Leavitt's new grand spectacular panto-mimic burlesque will be presented tonight at the opera house. This superb organization comes to luction seen on the American stage in years; th company numbers forty people and embraces the choice of American operatic, pantomime and vanueville stars, and several of the latest European vanderine stars, and several or the movelties. Catchy music, funny topical songs, magnificent scenery, half a dozen imposingly gorgeous ballets, processions, marches, endless grotesque comedy, scores of amusing wittleisms and an even larger and better stock of what are called local hits. Spectacularly stock of what are called local hits. Spectacularly considered, nothing more sumptuously and dazzlingly respicated and glittering has been seen in years; indeed one may say, and be reasonably safe, that it surpasses, as a whole, in glowing splendor anything that has gone before it. The costuming has been lavishly supplied. Not a shabby or cheap looking item is seen in it. The materials all of the finest, the colors are rich and sourtistically distributed that in the successive groupings there is scarcely ever a jarring shade, but each lends effect to the others, while that in every particular it is fresh, new and brilliant looking goes without saying. There are no stars in this company, but there are several who have been stars in other companies.

Paul Kauvar. It is very seldom that any audience leaves a house of amusement any better pleased than do those which witness the production of Steele Mackaye's masterpiece, "Paul Kauvar." That the piece makes a "hit," is assured by the rounds of applause which mark each climar throughout the entire production, speaking volumes jointly for the sterling dramatic worth of the piece and the talented company presenting it.

FREELAND: SOCIAL ANTICIPATION. By Dr.

THEODOR HERTZKA. 12mo. Cloth, $1. A most interesting attempt to work out the social problems which confront the world today It is a description of an ideal community founded upon new and yet not impossible conditions. In Germany this book has met with a success equal to that of "Looking Backward" in this country and, like the latter book, it has led to the founda-tion of clubs and societies, and to efforts to put the plans of the author into actual practice.

ONE REASON WHY.

By BEATRICE WHITEY, author of "The Awakening of Mary Fenwick," "Part of the Property," etc. No. 81, Town and Country Library. 12mo, Paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1. "It is not often that the first novel of an author is such a pronounced success as is 'The Awaken-ing of Mary Fenwick."—Christian Union.

"Part of the Property' is a thoroughly good book. . It is refreshing to read a novel in which there is not a trace of slipshod work."— London Spectator.
